

Croydon College Moodle makes use of First party cookies to enable quicker access to your personal account. If you do not wish to have this cookie on your computer you can remove it by logging out of your account and when you next login do not click on the “remember me” box. This will mean that you will have to log into your account each time you go to the site.

We do not make use of third party cookies within our site, but some of the sites that we link to, some of our resources suppliers, and some information feeds may make use of these. Please see statements on these websites about their use of cookies

You can find out more information on cookies on www.whatarecookies.com or in this Wikipedia article